Some Advice From Fellow Students

- Make sure you have an easy commute to the hospital and know that parking there can be fairly expensive.
- Biking makes most everywhere accessible, but it's not an option in the winter.
- You don't need to choose your housing based on distance from WIMR - the bus system in Madison is extremely reliable, even during snow storms.
- Don't be afraid to live downtown if you need access to facilities on the west side; buses make it really easy.
- Find a good fit for you - If you're studious, live near WIMR - If you like to party/the nightlife, live downtown/main campus area.
- Get a roommate if at all possible to save on rent.
- Avoid the luxury apartments (they've built a ton in recent years).
- Know that the UW offers food assistance to students through an on campus food pantry (The Open Seat), which can add ~$200 to your monthly income.
- Living further away from campus can offer you more amenities (e.g garage parking and washer/dryer included) for much less.
- Plan meals ahead of time.
- If you live on the far east side you'll almost certainly need a car to get around town and run errands.
